Madhab Palace, Fujairah, United Arab Emirates

The stunning gardens of the Madhab Palace, in the United Arab Emirates, feature LeesonBound for the pathways between the pools and flower beds. Set in the foothills of the Hajar Mountains, it is the official residence of the Crown Prince of Fujairah and is used to receive his official guests. The magnificent surroundings and the mountainous backdrop create a spectacular view, while the pathways provide a monochromatic framework of borders for the vibrant planting and vivid lagoons.

The Emirate of Fujairah is the fifth largest of the seven that make up the United Arab Emirates. Sheikh Hamad is the current ruler since 1974 and Fujairah has blossomed under his rule as a tourist destination.
