Strawberry Fields

The iconic location that inspired the Beatles song 'Strawberry Fields Forever' now has LeesonBound stone binder resin and aggregate installed on the pathways around the centre. Visitors can also walk round the developed gardens that John Lennon loved so much and spent time in as a youth. The LeesonBound ensures that the paths are smooth and even giving optimum access for disabled users. The Victorian house used to be a children's home run by the Salvation Army, but is now an exhibition, café, shop, gardens and a Steps to Work programme for young adults with learning difficulties.
